Russia Not Ready To Wage Agressive War, Says Speaker

Magidoff Speaks To Over 1200. At College Today

"I do not believe the Kremlin is trying to precipitate a major war at the present time," Robert Magidoff told an audience of over 1,200 educators, students and townspeople at Murray State college this morning.

Magidoff was the principal speaker at the 64th annual meeting of the First District Educational Association on the Murray campus. He is a Russian-born citizen of the United States who was an American correspondent to Moscow for 12 years until he was expelled from the country in April of this year. He was affiliated with NBC until a Russian citizen accused him of being a spy which caused his deportation.

"Russia cannot conduct a major war right now," said Magidoff, "because the morale of the Russian people is too low. However, war may come at any minute because the political game the Russian leaders are playing is very dangerous."

The speaker pointed out that the Russian people are traditionally peaceful, and have never fought an aggressive war. The Russians like to admire the Americans and are putting up a strong resistance to the "Hate America" campaign which is being thrust upon them.

Magidoff quoted statistics to show that the United States is at present out-producing Russia four to one in strategic war materials, especially steel. He further said that Russia may have the secret of the atomic bomb as they have hinted, but they are in no position to produce atomic bombs in quantity, perhaps not past the experimental stage.

Magidoff said that he believes the Russian leaders are acting the way they do because they have mistaken U. S. tolerance for weakness in the past. He believes that Russia will "calm down" if the U. S. remains firm.

"Russia will never dare to attack a strong America," Magidoff said in closing.

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Pinkley left Friday morning for Memphis to visit Mrs. Pinkley's sister, Mrs. R. E. Orr and Mr. Orr.

By United Press
More butcher shops slashed meat prices today and the chief spokesman for the nation's retail meat dealers said the downward trend will continue through the remainder of the month.

George Dressler, secretary of the national association of retail meat dealers predicted that butchers would mark price tags downward even more before Nov. 1.

He said he expected prices to drop "considerably" before leveling off.

At Cincinnati, meanwhile, one of the city's biggest chains cut prices on 49 cuts of pork and beef from two to 16 cents a pound.

Dressler predicted that prices will "recover slightly" before winter but that the ultimate "leveling off" price will be far below the record highs recorded last winter.

"When the leveling off period comes, meat prices should stay more or less even until next summer."

At Chicago, a big chain "cut round steaks from 95 to 89 cents and lopped a few pennies off the price of hamburger. It expected further reductions next week. Two other chains also expected to make big markdowns.

A spokesman for independent food dealers said independent butchers and grocers are making price reductions along with the chains. But he claimed that the drop in meat prices was seasonal and those on beef covered only the poorest grades.

He expected greater reductions next spring when feed lots ship their cattle to the feeders, "out real barometer is the feeder."

Present reductions, he said, may be "just a flash in the pan" but any price cuts next spring will be "highly significant" from a long range standpoint.

The Agriculture Department, meanwhile predicted that housewives will find more chicken at lower prices in the corner markets next year.

MIGHTY CARRIER TO COME—This is an artist's conception of the U. S. Navy's proposed 65,000-ton flush-deck aircraft carrier, originally suggested by the late Admiral Marc A. Mitscher. Scheduled to be built by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., the floating airfield will be 1,090 feet long, with a maximum fixed width of 190 feet.

Giant Parade To Climax Fire Prevention Week Activities

Fire Prevention Week activities will be climaxed Saturday with a giant parade at 1:00 o'clock in the afternoon. The parade will start at Murray high school and the line of march will be east on Main street to the court house square.

At least one band, fire trucks, floats and marching contingents will be included in the parade.

Immediately following the parade, the fire department will give a demonstration at the National hotel, showing how a person is rescued from an upper story window in case of fire. After this, the firemen will give a demonstration of various fire-fighting techniques on the city square.

Prizes for the winners in the window display and poster contests will be awarded in front of the court house at approximately 3:00 o'clock. All winners are asked to be present.

One of the main features of the parade will be a truck hauling Mr. Arson confined in a cage. Mr. Arson arrived in Murray Wednesday afternoon and tried to start several fires around the court house square. However, alert firemen were on his trail and the fires were quickly extinguished. He was arrested and placed in jail by Police Chief Parker and Patrolman Warren.

Mr. Arson will be burned at the stake late Saturday afternoon to symbolize the end of all fires in Murray for the coming year.

Meet Our Paper Carriers

Gerald McCord

Gerald Hughes McCord, age 13, has been a paper carrier for the Ledger and Times for six months. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McCord, and is one of a family of five children. His younger brother, "Donnie," 10, also delivers papers for the Ledger and Times.

Gerald, apparently is completely sold on his job as a paper carrier. When asked what he wants to do when he finishes school, Gerald replied, "Deliver papers." He cares nothing about being a railroad conductor, policeman or fire chief.

Gerald is a freshman at Murray high school this year, and plays in the high school band. His favorite subject is English.

On Sunday Gerald attends Sunday school at the First Christian church. On Saturdays, and after he gets his papers delivered in the evening, if there is any time left, he likes to participate in all kinds of sports. His favorites are swimming and football. He hopes to make the varsity in high school next year.

UN OFFICIALS TRY TO AVOID VOTE ON BERLIN CRISIS

Paris, Oct. 8 (UP)—Top officials of the United Nations hunted desperately today for a compromise formula which would keep the Berlin crisis from coming to a showdown vote in the Security Council.

They feared that a showdown vote, certain to be vetoed by Russia, would blow up the UN as it now exists and step up the temperature of the cold war.

Foreign Minister Jaun A. Bramuglia, chairman of the Security Council, appeared to be in the role of conciliator between the East and the West. Early today he talked for more than an hour with Andrei Vishinsky, Chief Soviet delegate to the UN.

The purpose of the talk was understood to be to find out whether there was any basis for hope that the Russians would accept an American offer of a new Council of Foreign Ministers meeting if the Berlin blockade is lifted.

Also working on the problem were Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, Secretary General Trygve Lie, Paul Henri Spaak of Belgium, chairman of the assembly's political committee, as well as most of the little nations caught in the squeeze of the cold war.

The agreement had become general that nothing worthwhile could be accomplished at this meeting of the UN Assembly until and unless the Berlin crisis is solved. But for the moment the watchword in the higher councils was "go slow."

The Security Council will not meet before Monday at the earliest.

Most UN officials and most of the delegations not involved directly in the Berlin dispute believed a compromise was possible. In order not to jeopardize the possibility, they sought to keep the situation in its current "preliminary stage."

None here doubted that if the Council—condemned Russia as an aggressor, all hope of compromise would be blasted. The Russians might walk out of the UN as they did the League of Nations when that organization branded them aggressors against Finland.

John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers gave Thomas E. Dewey a friendly pat on the back today in a resolution which condemned President Truman as "no friend" of the labor union.

The resolution, adopted at the miners' 40th annual convention in Cincinnati, didn't give outright endorsement of the GOP presidential candidate. But it said he "has never uttered any statement that reflects upon the integrity of the objectives of the United Mine Workers of America or its officers or members."

The vote was overwhelming, but not unanimous. After calling for election of union friends and defeat of its enemies, the resolution said that "the present incumbent in the White House is no friend of the labor union."

United Mine Workers of America. The miners took another crack at the Taft-Hartley Act and recommended defeat of all congressmen who voted for it.

Mr. Truman, campaigning in New York, Dewey's home state, also swung again at the labor law. He told rain-soaked crowds at station "whistle stops" that Republicans tried to "halt" labor by passage of the law.

Dewey was taking things easy preparatory to a new invasion of the Midwest which starts Sunday. He did, however, get in some licks on housing at the dedication of the Gov. Alfred E. Smith housing project in New York City. He blamed Democrats for the housing shortage and said it could be remedied by a "competent" administration in Washington.

ELECTION POEM

After they have Warned (Warren) of Mr. Wallace, And the Storm (Strom) has ceased, And the Dewey fields become dry, Right (Wright) will prevail and send Barkley To the White House with a True Man (Truman).

Murray Defeats Fulton With Easy Score Of 55-0

Still smarting from an embarrassing 27-0 defeat at the hands of Mayfield last week, the Murray Tigers journeyed to Fulton last night and outclassed their opponents with a score of 55-0.

Paced by the powerful running of Glenn Jeffrey and Chad Stewart, and sterling offensive play by Eli Alexander, the Tigers completely ran over the opposition after building up a 21-0 margin in the first half.

Jeffrey and Stewart took turns sweeping for long jaunts and touchdowns.

downs, and Stewart chimed in frequently with sure-fire passes to Alexander. Alexander scored one touchdown on a pass completion, but the other goals resulted from powerful ground work.

Fulton's only ray of light was in the passing department where they completed five out of ten attempts for 100 yards net gain. However, their offense was completely bogged down.

Demonstration Planned For Soil Conservation

The "New Look" for farms will be demonstrated to an expected 5,000 Kentuckians Monday, October 11, when the soil conservation demonstration is held at the intersection of Highway 68 and 95, has been selected for the demonstration.

Watkins Bros. farm, at the intersection of Highway 68 and 95, has been selected for the demonstration. Soil conservation practices that will be established include terracing, shaping and establishing sod waterways; constructing a farm pond and stock watering system; planning wildlife areas; preparing seedbed and seeding for pasture; planting trees; contour farming and land clearing.

Dr. Ralph Woods, President, Murray College; J. W. Sargent, Asst. Regional Conservationist, Soil Conservation Service, Spartanburg, South Carolina; Johnnie Graham, Kentucky Bankers Association, agricultural representative, are the main speakers for the day.

Norman Terry, district Conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service, says the demonstration will be one of the most impressive farm events ever held in Marshall County. Besides the demonstration to be held there, eleven other are scheduled in the State within the 30-day period, September 18 to October 19.

Equipment which will be used will be carried from farm to farm in a caravan of twelve large trucks. Twelve wheel-tractors, two crawler-tractors, and two motor graders will be supplemented by additional equipment provided by local dealers, to total 40 or 50 tractors and other equipment present on the each farm.

The equipment in the caravan is being provided by branch houses in Kentucky and adjoining states, supplemented by machinery furnished by local representatives.

Veterans' organizations, agricultural classes, and volunteer neighborhood farmers will supply the manpower to establish the soil conservation program.

RUSSIA CHARGES U. S. PREPARING FOR ATOMIC WAR

PARIS, Oct. 7 (UPI)—The United States is preparing for atomic war, Russian delegate Andrei A. Vishinsky charged again today in an arm-waving vitriolic speech before the political committee of the United Nations.

Denouncing the world's "mad armaments race," Vishinsky referred to headquarters of the U. S. Department of the Army in the Pentagon building in Washington in these terms:

"In the Pentagon there are people who are men of action of military trade who are preparing a new war, working out plans for 50 years ahead."

Insisting that the atomic bomb is an aggressive weapon, only the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister cried:

"Those who don't want to spread mastery over foreign territory don't need to clutch this weapon for attack."

It was Vishinsky's first UN speech since Tuesday, when he announced that Russia would boycott Security Council debate on the Berlin crisis, in which the western powers charge Russia with threatening the peace by the blockade of the German capital.

He opened debate in the political committee on the Russian proposal for one-third disarmament within one year by the big five powers.

Taking the floor after Vishinsky, British delegate Hector McNeil challenged the Soviet Union to prove its disarmament proposal sincere and warned the UN to "look this particular Russian gift horse very carefully in the mouth."

He called Vishinsky's proposal "not realistic," not even a method calculated to create the confidence without which disarmament cannot proceed, and branded the Soviet move as "propaganda."

The speeches of the two men made even plainer what nearly all observers had agreed upon even before this third UN general assembly session opened less than two weeks ago—that the UN cannot do anything about disarmament with the temper of the world as it is.

As Vishinsky spoke, the United States and its western allies were seeking new deals with the Soviet Union in two of the most explosive spots before the UN—the Berlin cold war and control of atomic energy.

In the Berlin case, the west seemed likely to support a Security Council resolution asking Russia to accept an American offer of a big four foreign ministers conference on German problems "the moment" the Soviet blockade is lifted.

THOSE CRAZY BARTLETT'S

by Peggy Dern

Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

THEY came back to the Bartlett place at dusk, and when Rusty and Susan had thanked Win for the day's fun and had vanished kitchenward with their catch, Win looked down at Celia and then said quietly, "Haden't we better break the news to your mother and father? You see, I'm not taking any chances. I want everybody to know!"

Buzz and Mary Sue were coming up from the garden in the soft summer twilight, moving slowly, smiling at each other, hand in hand like two tired, contented children.

Win, holding Celia's hand, drew her to him to meet them, and when Buzz and Mary Sue looked at Celia and then said quietly, "Haden't we better break the news to your mother and father? You see, I'm not taking any chances. I want everybody to know!"

Buzz said something under his breath that sounded like—and was!—one of his more lurid oaths.

Win waited, his eyes cold, a look about him that displayed his dislike for their hesitation.

Buzz said after a moment, "Are you kidding us—or telling us?"

"I asked Celia last night," stated Win flatly. "I'm telling you!"

There was unveiled hostility between the two men now, and Mary Sue looked swiftly from one to the other before she smiled shyly at Celia and said, as politely as though Celia had been merely a house guest, "My dear, I'm so glad I hope you'll both be very happy."

She offered a hand to Win, who accepted it, then she turned to Buzz and said eagerly, "We'd better go in, darling. I'm sure they are so lovely this time of the evening—especially for two people who are in love."

She turned back anxiously to Celia, her brows drawn together in a frown, and asked anxiously, "You are in love, aren't you, Celia?"

The swift color burned in Celia's face, but she spoke very gently, "Of course, Ma Sue—why else would I be marrying him?"

"I don't know," confessed Mary Sue, "unless it would be because he is so terribly rich."

She broke off as Win's face tightened and his jaw set hard. She put out a placating hand and said, "You aren't very good-looking and enormously attractive and all that, Mr. Mallory. I'm sure a great many women have been terribly in love with you, and I'm sure Celia is not different from other women. It's only that to me that being rich is nice and any normal girl would like a rich husband. But of course I'm sure Celia would be in love with you if you hadn't a penny—although it's nice that you have."

BUZZ said sternly, "What you are over your head, kid, and sinking fast!" But there was affectionate amusement in his eyes, and his hand that drew hers through his arm, was very gentle.

What she means, Mr. Mallory is that if Celia wants to marry you, that's her business! Naturally, we both hope you'll be happy!" said Buzz firmly, and added, "I don't suppose there's anything more for us to say—except good night!"

Win watched them as they went up the walk, and when he looked at Celia again she saw that his face was hard with resentment.

"So that's your mother and father!" he commented dryly. "I don't wonder that you felt like a stranger here. Is Aunt Judith as casual towards you?"

Celia said swiftly, "It's just that you don't understand—" but she bit back the words. She couldn't betray the confidence that Ruby Pearl had entrusted to her; she couldn't tell him that Buzz and Mary Sue were so completely absorbed in each other that they lived in a tight little world all their own, or that their abhorrence was based on the knowledge of each, supposedly unknown to the other, that Mary Sue was living on borrowed time, and that any day the breath of life held them together might be snuffed.

Celia looked up at him gravely and said, "I've told you, darling—Aunt Judith is really my family. And she won't be willing for me to marry you until she is honestly and sincerely convinced that we really love each other and that our marriage will endure."

"Win put his arm about her and said dryly, "Hm-m!" I'm not so sure I like that, either. Think she's going to be hard to convince? Maybe I ought to just bundle you up and run off with you—hey, that's an idea! How about marrying me tomorrow, and we'll fly to Mexico and face Aunt Judith? It would be a marvelous honeymoon!"

"I couldn't, darling. I've got to tell her first," Celia insisted. At last he yielded the point and she stood in the drive, watching him go away, after promising that she would ride with him in the morning.

"I couldn't, darling. I've got to tell her first," Celia insisted. At last he yielded the point and she stood in the drive, watching him go away, after promising that she would ride with him in the morning.

THEY went upstairs at last, suddenly conscious of the rumpled feeling that inevitably followed a day in the open, even with all the conveniences that Win had been able to provide. She showered, and was slipping into a thin, short-sleeved white dinner dress when there was a knock at the door and Honey came in, sleek and shining and very lovely in her chartruese crepe frock.

"Look, Celia, Susan's been telling me some perfectly fantastic story about your being engaged to Win Mallory!" said Honey as she came in.

"What makes you think it's so fantastic, Honey?" Honey looked incredulous. "Then it is true!" she said.

"Does it sound so crazy? After all, Honey, I'm—well, I have had men tell me I'm attractive and even fun to be with."

Honey laughed and hugged her impulsively.

"Hi, come down off that high horse, and brush that chip off your shoulder, pal," she ordered gaily. "You'll be back a nut! Gosh, you're beautiful and any man with a nickel's worth of sense would fall for you like a ton of brick! I just wonder how you could go for him! Though he is terribly good looking, and—well, attractive."

"And as Mary Sue pointed out in his presence, is terribly rich," said Celia dryly.

"He doesn't like me," said Mary Sue, "pleased Honey gently. "She is—well, she's unique! There's no one else like her. But she's the sweetest, kindest, gentlest soul alive—even if she does come out now and then with statements that sort of knock me for a goal. She wouldn't hurt a fly, and if she thought she'd wounded your feelings, or Mr. Mallory's, she'd be simply sick!"

CELIA glanced sharply at her sister. Did Honey know, too, about Mary Sue's frail hold on life? Was she carefully kept, jealous, and secret that in name only? But Honey's eyes were wide and innocent, and Celia decided that she didn't know.

"What he like, Celia—really, I mean? I've heard people talk about him, of course. They make him sound a little like a monster with a forked tail and cloven hooves. But if you are in love with him, he must be nice!"

"That's a very sweet thing to say, Honey," she said quietly. "Thanks! Win's terribly nice. I'd like you to know him, and his sister, too."

"Well, if you're going to marry him, I'm quite likely to meet them, and that's well!" said Honey happily, and Celia suddenly and impulsively hugged her.

"The two girls smiled at each other, both a little shy, not accustomed to demonstrative affection, yet enjoying this moment of closeness.

Miss Crawford Is Hostess To W.S.C.S. Meeting Wednesday

Miss Manone Crawford was hostess at a meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Lynn Grove Methodist Church on Wednesday evening. Thirteen members were present.

The program, "Our Work in Alaska" was given by Mrs. Herman Rogers. The mission study, "On Our Own Doorstep," was given by Miss Crawford and Mrs. Eran Story.

Following the program, Mrs. Bunn Swann, president, presided over the business session. Mrs. Swann was elected as the delegate to the District conference. A gift was sent by the society to Mrs. Marine.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess to those present. The group adjourned to meet in an all day "week of prayer" meeting at the Parsonage October 29.

Joseph D. Lindsey, student at Murray State, has been dismissed from the Murray Hospital after a few days treatment.

South Pleasant Grove W.S.C.S. Meets With Mrs. Bob Orr

Member of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the South Pleasant Grove Methodist Church were entertained at the regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Bob Orr Wednesday evening. There was a good attendance of members and a number of visitors were present.

The worship service was under the direction of the Spiritual Life leader, Mrs. Toy Brandon. She was assisted by several girls of the church. Mrs. Mildred Guthrie had charge of the program for the evening, the theme being—on Alaska.

A short business session was held presided over by the president, Mrs. Mildred Guthrie. Mrs. Guthrie was selected by the group as a delegate to District Conference which will meet at First Church, Paris, on October 21. A committee was appointed to arrange for a radio program to be presented by the organization.

The first lesson of the Bible study on "Great Prayers of the Bible" was presented by Mrs. C. L. Page who gave the first chapter

In Memory of Fred Shultz
Report of Special Committee
To the Murray, Kentucky, Lions Club
April 28, 1948

Fellow Lions:

Most fittingly Lion President Vaughn recently appointed a special committee to draft a memorial respecting our late and distinguished brother Fred Shultz. Striving for the consensus in which our departed brother is held, the committee submits for your consideration the following opinion:

Fred Shultz was a manly man — a strong, wholesome, vital character. An exemplary Lion, he was the personification of the slogan of Lionism: a charter member and president of the Murray Lions Club — several times delegate to district, state, or national conventions — and recently Governor of District 43K. His humanitarianism was neither Club-bound nor State-bound. Bursting the narrow confines of localism, his dynamic personality stimulated wholesome fraternal life not only throughout Western Kentucky but also through neighboring states. So vivacious was his eloquence that it quickened Lionism locally, nationally, and internationally.

Every person that knew him will long miss his cheery voice and his vigorous handshake; but every Lion who knew him in the intimacy of fraternal association will continue long to recognize his spiritual presence, working heartily and graciously.

WHEREAS the Almighty has in His inscrutable wisdom removed the tangible body of Fred Shultz from the physical stage wherein we his colleagues feel that he would have led us successfully for many years, we the members of the Murray, Kentucky, Lions Club

Resolve

1. That we will strive to perpetuate his cheerful goodness.
2. That, as evidence of our sympathy with his family in their sorrow, we send a copy of this memorial to Mrs. Fred Shultz, and
3. That, as endorsement of his high-toned Lionism, we send a copy of this memorial to each of the Murray papers and a copy to Lions International Magazine.

Knowing that Death knocks with certain tread at the palace of kings and the cottages of the poor, we pray that as Lions, in our brief day, we so think and act, that, like Fred Shultz, we may increase joy and freedom and intelligence in the whole neighborhood of mankind.

Respectfully submitted,
